Salmon Festival

Featuring Fresh Salmon

The Salmon Festival was the original inspiration for The Great Scott's Seafood Extravaganza. Perhaps the most famous of all seafood and certainly something we love at Scott's. In the month of July, we get the rare opportunity to compare Wild and Farm Raised Salmon. There are two types of Salmon featured on our menu, Pacific Wild King Salmon and Atlantic Farm-Raised Salmon. You will find that the Pacific Wild King Salmon is leaner than Atlantic Salmon. Its taste varies widely depending on where and when it was caught. It is generally believed that Wild Salmon is better than farmed Salmon, but many chefs disagree. Join us in July for the Salmon Festival and you be the judge!

Deep South Festival

Featuring Fish and Shellfish from the Deep South

Cajun and Creole make up one of the most distinctive of America's regional cuisines. Early Spanish, French, African and Native American influences were wedded into this uniquely different style of cooking. The many uses of peppers, herbs and spices, combined with the abundant fresh fish and shellfish have given us famous dishes such as blackened catfish, shrimp creole, gumbo and jambalaya.

From the fine restaurants of New Orleans to the dinner tables of homes along the Louisiana bayous, these dishes bring with them a heartwarming feeling of celebration and Southern hospitality. Come join us at Scott's this August as we celebrate our Deep South Festival.

Featuring Fish and Shellfish from the East Coast

The grand tradition of the New England Clam Bake goes back to at least 1641, when colonists traded polished clam shells or wampum with Native Americans.

Deep cold waters yield a rich variety of fish and shellfish headed by the prince of seafood, the luscious Maine Lobster. For Scott's Old Fashioned Clam Bake, we'll fly in the freshest seafood daily and use only the finest farm-raised shellfish to ensure the best quality for our menu.
